“Oft We Come Together”

John Isaac Edwards

One of our great privileges as children of God is that of coming together with fellow Christians to sing, to pray, and to study.

One of the things that impressed me in Chile was the eagerness of brethren to learn as evidenced by the lengths to which they went in assembling with the saints.

The five men pictured above rode their bicycles to be present to study the Bible. What makes this even more impressive is the fact that record temperatures were set in the region during our visit. According to the local newspaper, it was 104 degrees in the shade. Two of these men rode their bicycles 30 minutes one-way in the intense heat. They said, “We are grateful for the opportunity to learn the lessons being taught.”

If you ever find it difficult to ride across town in your comfortable automobile to assemble with the saints, you might stop and think of these five men. “Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled” (Matthew 5:6).

“And He Brought Him to Jesus”

John Isaac Edwards

In John one, we read of Andrew who found his brother and brought him to Jesus (John 1:40-42).

I would like to introduce Paulo (center of the photo). Upon learning the truth, he found his parents (to his right), who were attending a Baptist denomination, and brought them to Jesus.

He also found two friends, Pedro and Cesar (to his left), one a Mormon and the other a Seventh-Day Adventist, and brought them to Jesus. We were privileged to be present as these four individuals confessed their faith and were baptized.

Let me encourage us to find our relatives and friends and bring them to Jesus.
